 670 The Rookery was owned and occupied by Benjamin Lees (it is interesting to note it was not at this time part of the Parwich Estate)

Licensees from Petty Sessions Records

- 1906 & 1907 John Prince licensee of the Crown Inn Parwich (owned by James Lees of Oldham and Hills Cromford Brewery)
(The Crown closed in 1907, a large number of pubs in the County closed around this time, including the Wheat Sheaf also in Parwich)

Censuses

(The Census information was taken from images of the actual Censuses on www.ancestry.com, however where they have made errors in their transcription it is not always possible to locate individuals or even families. In London in particular this creates difficulty as it is not practical, as in a small village, to look through all the entries for a given year.)

Information from the IGI

(This information needs to be checked against the actual parish registers. There are over 1,300 Prince entries for Derbyshire alone, with the earliest being in the 1500s. The earliest link to Parwich, so far, is the marriage of Isaac Prince here in 1739. However there are also a large number of gaps in the Prince records. The IGI is incomplete; however the gaps are more than might be expected from just the gaps in the Mormons' transcription of church records, suggesting that a proportion at least of the family were not members of the established church.)
